CITY OF SWAN FIRE HAZARD REDUCTION NOTICE

While echoing the importance of the City of Swan's administration of community safety, the SVRRA is aware of multiple reports from ratepayers of breach notices and infringements received from the City in regard to firebreaks.

It is possible that in many cases these notices may have arisen through an ad hoc application of properties reviewed through to an overly bureaucratic and impractical interpretation of fire risk mitigation policy through the Swan Valley.

Have you received a Firebreak Breach Notice or a Firebreak Infringement? Has a city officer requested you to make changes to your current firebreak that may actually reduce the effectiveness of your firebreaks?

If so please contact Rex McCrae on 0412 646 560 or horticulturalist@gmail.com

Extra donation time

Dear Echo News,

While Australians enjoyed an extra 24 hours in February – the bonus leap year day – that also meant an extra day of need for patients in hospitals.

With time frequently listed as one of the greatest barriers to donating blood, Lifeblood hopes people will turn their extra time in March into a lifetime for someone in need by giving a blood or plasma donation.

There are around 33,000 blood donations needed every week to help a range of seriously ill Australians.

And this year, we had an extra day of need, which required more than 5500 extra blood and plasma donations.

Cancer patients, pregnant women, road trauma victims, premature babies, and people with blood disorders need blood every single day.

Throughout February and on leap day, people living with cancer were our biggest users of donated blood.

We used around 2000 of the donations made on February 29 for cancer treatments.

With one in two Australians expected to be diagnosed with cancer by the age of 85, by donating blood the chances are you'll be helping someone you know to tackle cancer.

To book a donation visit lifeblood.com.au, download the free Donate Blood app or call 13 14 95.

Fifty years of fantasy

Dear Echo News,

Half a century on from its creation, Dungeons and Dragons (D&D) continues to attract millions of players across demographics.

How is a fantasy game from 1974 still capturing the imagination of so many people?

increased D&D's popularity, over the past decade in particular, has been driven by the success of the game's current version (the fifth edition, released in 2014), the growth in online gaming culture, as well as increased social acceptance of what have historically been considered 'nerdy' or 'geeky' interests.

The current D&D edition hits a sweet spot. It's complex enough to sustain long-standing players, but approachable enough to draw in new people.

But as D&D became mainstream, scrutiny followed. The subculture has its share of controversies, including an element of toxic fandom that expresses hostility towards the game's evolution and diversifying fan base.

As with any growing community, some fans have been concerned with gatekeeping. Some players experience bullying and exclusion, while others find themselves in awkward conversations around the table.

This has been a recurring concern for women trying D&D for the first

The flexible nature of the game means fans have found endless ways to turn their campaigns into something highly personal and treasured.

In challenging times, tabletop games provide inexpensive entertainment, escapism, and a way to stay connected to friends and family.

One recent Australian study of community members playing the game over an eightweek period, found playing D&D decreased players' depression, stress and anxiety, and increased self-esteem.

The authors suggest the game could be used as a wellbeing intervention tool or to prevent mental health issues from arising.

Role-playing games in particular offer psychological support to people of all ages, helping to combat anxiety and build confidence.

The policy was scrapped at the February 27 meeting, after north ward councillor David Modolo's motion to which previous notice had been given passed after six councillors voted in favour, while three voted against.

There was applause but also confusion after the motion passed, as Cr Ritchie had also planned to move a separate motion to defer and review the policy over the next six months.

However, the city's governance advisor Darrell Forrest explained that as Cr Modolo's motion had passed with an absolute majority, Cr Ritchie's motion now also needed an absolute majority compared to a simple majority.

"The only thing that's changed tonight is because you had the revocation motion already passed this second motion now has a higher step to pass through ... you now need an absolute majority, rather than a simple majority, because that

MARCH will see Toodyay real estate agent Tony Maddox and the Shire of Toodyay back before the magistrate over a series of creek crossings that have been built over Boyagerring Brook and Toodyay Brook.

The Shire of Toodyay will be back at Northam Magistrates Court on March 25 over a series of creek crossings that were built over Toodyay Brook and Boyagerring Brook.

At the first hearing on February 26, the shire entered no plea and the case was adjourned.

In Toodyay shire cops' heritage charges (Echo News, February 16) the shire had received four charges of excavated, damaged, and otherwise altered an Aboriginal site, alongside four charges of a person who excavated, destroyed, damaged, concealed or in any way altered any Aboriginal site.

If convicted the shire faces a fine of $50,000. The charges were laid under the amended Aboriginal Heritage Act 1972.

Toodyay real estate agent Tony Maddox is also due back in Perth Magistrates Court on March 6.

Mr Maddox is also facing a charge of a person who excavated, destroyed, damaged, concealed or in any way altered an Aboriginal site over a creek crossing which was built to cross Boyagerring Brook.

He has pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Mr Maddox is being defended by former Attorney-General Christian Porter, whose move to scrap the trial failed after his argument that the maps used to record Aboriginal cultural heritage by the Department of Planning, Lands and Heritage were

Forrestfield cops seize hoon's car

IN an unexpected turn of events during a retirement celebration at a local hotel on Friday, February 16, off-duty officers from Forrestfield police station found themselves thrust into the role of unexpected crime witnesses.

The celebration was in honour of a veteran police officer who had served an impressive 35 years.
At around 7.30pm, the festive atmosphere at the Kalamunda Hotel took a dramatic turn as the attention of approximately 30 off-duty officers was drawn to the front of the

A high-powered black Ford Mustang left a trail of smoke, executing a series of burnouts, estimated to include about five donuts, before speeding away towards Lesmurdie.

The audacious driver's actions unfolded amidst a heavy presence of patrons, including Forrestfield officer in charge senior sergeant Brad Robinson and a large group of off-duty police, in one of the most heavily surveilled areas of the district. Astonishingly, many officers and patrons managed to record the culprit's personal registration plate despite the billowing smoke.

Swift action followed, with the culprit's prized Mustang seized the following morning, Saturday, February 17. The driver is now faced with the reality of future court appearances, the associated seizure costs, and the potential loss of his driver's license.

According to senior sergeant Robinson, when the driver was questioned about the reckless behaviour, they expressed regret.

For senior sergeant Robinson, this conveys a strong message to the wider community, expressing frustration with anti-social hoon behaviour, burnouts, speed, and reckless trail bike activity on local roads.

"The wider community is fed up with the anti-social hoon behaviour, burnouts, speed, and the reckless trail bike activity on our roads," he said.

He further warned that the Forrestfield and hills communities can expect to see greater law enforcement efforts, potentially including monitoring from air assets, to de-

He said the incident serves as a stark reminder of the commitment to maintaining road safety and curbing dangerous activities on our streets.

Historic WA firearm laws enter Parliament

THE largest overhaul of firearms laws in Western Australia's history entered Parliament last week following years of extensive consultation with licence holders, industry stakeholders and the broader public.

Law changes will enhance public safety by implementing stricter licensing and storage requirements, introducing compulsory training and health checks as well as mandatory disqualifying offences. It will also see Western Australia become the first state or territory to impose a limit on the number of firearms an individual can own.

While there have been several amendments to the Act over the years, there has been no structural reform since it was enacted back in

A $64.3 million Cook Government funded voluntary firearm buyback is now open to all individual firearms licence holders across the State, with owners eligible to receive a maximum of $1,000 for their gun, dependant on type, style, calibre and initial registration date.

Firearms can be surrendered at any WA Police station. Unlicensed firearms may be surrendered via the State's ongoing amnesty, how-ever, the person in possession is not eligible to receive compensation.

The buyback will remain open until Saturday, August 31 2024, or until funding is exhausted.

In addition to rewriting the State's 50-year-old Firearms Act, the state government has already more than doubled the penalties for anyone convicted of unlawful possession of a firearm or unlawfully discharging a firearm in public, outlawed 3D printed guns and introduced Firearm Prohibition Orders to target bikies and other organised crime figures.

Premier Roger Cook said the Firearms Bill modernises Western Australia's gun licensing regime and prioritises public safety above the privilege of owning a firearm.

"Farmers who use firearms to do their job, club members who use them to participate in their sport and recreational hunters who help landowners to control vermin are all accommodated for in the new legislation.

"However, some current gun owners may struggle to prove their legitimate need for a licence when the laws change.'

Street Doctor's latest mobile GP clinic is now ready to roll

PETER W LEWIS

PERTH'S newest and upgraded free mobile GP clinic has hit the road – taking doctors and health care to the suburbs including Midland and Bassendean.

The mobile clinic will come to Midland on Tuesdays at the Karnany Resource Centre and Bassendean on Wednesdays and Fridays at the Swan Districts Football Club.

The state government-funded 360 Street Doctor service provides an accessible, non-judgemental health service for people experiencing homelessness, who are transient, or facing disadvantage.

First established in 2001 by a GP who identified a need for primary health care for people living rough, 360 Street Doctor sees thousands of people every year – providing all the services of a conventional general practice - but on wheels.

The 360 Street Doctor provides more than 3,400 consultations annually – treating people across the Perth metropolitan area. This innovative service takes the clinic to clients at familiar locations on a regular timetable, often treating people who may be unwilling or unable to access more traditional health services.

The mobile clinics are staffed by GPs, registered nurses, outreach workers, Aboriginal health practitioners, and a pharmacist," 360 Health Allied Health and Community Services senior manager Lisa Winter said.

They travel to selected Perth metropolitan locations based on areas of need and availability of nearby support services – co-locating with services such as drug and alcohol assistance, and mental health support so clients can easily access this help at the same time," she said.

The newest mobile clinic is a valuable addition to the service's aging fleet.

With a price tag of $242,000, the new truck has had a complete medical fit-out with new diagnostic equipment, an energy efficient dual power management system, and the very latest technology - including options to access telehealth services.

It has enhanced security to ensure the safety of clients and clinicians, and improved accessibility for clients who need mobility assistance.

Health Minister Amber-Jade Sanderson said the 360 Street Doctor service provides everything a traditional GP does but in an outreach environment making health care more accessible for many people.

"These mobile clinics also create a social hub with access to associated community supports for clients attending appointments.

'It's exciting to see the newest mobile clinic on the road – providing essential health care to those in our community who really need it."

The Midland clinic is at Karnany Resource Centre, Spring Park Road, Midland and is operational on Tuesdays from 9am to 12pm.

On Wednesdays it is open at the Swan Districts Football Club, Old Perth Road, Bassendean from 9am to 1.00pm, and Fridays from 9am to 3.30pm.

No referral or appointment is necessary as a walk-in service is provided.

Street Doctor offers all the services you would expect from your regular GP, out of a purpose-built clinical truck, including:

- Common medical conditions and general health GP management plans and care plans
- Mental health
- Sexual health
- Immunisations
- Health assessments
- Minor cut and wound care
- Blood tests
- Pregnancy testing and support
- Specialist referrals

'A doctor and a nurse provide clinical services at Street Doctor, with experienced outreach workers and Aboriginal health workers providing social support to those accessing the clinic," Ms Winter

Break-ins and theft diggest concern for nomes

RESEARCH from Compare the Market has revealed that break-ins and theft are the biggest concerns for people and their homes in 2024.

Over a third of respondents reported burglary as the top concern, while over a quarter stated that they had no concern for their home for the year ahead.

And despite the wild wet weather lashing the eastern states for the past month while bushfires rage on the western coast, concern for damages caused by these events is relatively low.

The research also found no difference in the top concern amongst the states, with robbery reigning as the top concern. South Australians (42.7%) were the most concerned about break-ins and theft, while Victorians (40.7%) weren't too far behind on the same assessment.

In perhaps the most surprising find of the research, the second most common answer for all the states, bar Queensland residents, was that they had no concerns for their homes for the upcoming year.

Compare the Market's executive general manager Adrian Taylor, said that if people are concerned about being burgled, it's better to be proactive rather than reactive.

"I always say being proactive is better than being reactive when it comes to protecting your home and belongings," Mr Taylor said.

"There are some inexpensive security measures available, ranging from sensor lights and camera-integrated doorbells to ward off pesky porch pirates, to a full suite of security cameras and alarms around the house to scare off those who are willing to steal something bigger."

His top tips to secure your home are lock windows and doors, consider installing extra security and review and your home and contents policy.

Childcare centre fined after sandpit scrap

GERA KAZAKOV

A HIGH Wycombe childcare centre has been fined after a scrap occurred within the centre's sandpit between children which none of the outdoor supervisors witnessed.

On February 26, the State Administrative Tribunal (SAT) ordered the Kids HQ Jacaranda pay $12,000 for failing to ensure that children receiving education and care at its service were adequately supervised at all times while in the care of the service, and a further $1500 towards legal costs.

The SAT statement of agreed facts state the incident occurred in the afternoon of December 2022 and primarily involved three children in an area which four educators were supervising.

The agreed facts describe the sandpit scrap then occurring between 3.07pm and 3.14pm, with the four area supervisors all reporting that they did not see or hear the incident.

It began when a child hit another with a yellow dish in the sandpit, which resulted in the other retaliating by hitting and attempting to scratch and bite the first child, all while following the child who hit them until that child fell over.

Another child then joined in throwing sand and objects at the first child, before they left the sandpit while the first laid there motionless for some time before getting up.

The facts state that once the altercation ended, the first child had what appeared to be bite marks and scratches to their right cheek and ear, alongside injuries to both hands.

In making its decision, SAT stated the centre has shown a desire to ensure a similar incident does not occur at its premises.

SAT noted that the centre has now added a 'director of supervision' position, to ensure the supervision policy is followed and supervision points are staffed, and that staff only leave supervision points provided other staff members has covered their position.

The centre has added a lanyard system to identify supervision points so workers know where they are stationed, and it also increased the number of outdoor supervision points. THE Midland and Airport line will be shut down for 10 days as part of essential rail alignment works for the Metronet Morley-Ellenbrook line and Bayswater station projects.

During the shutdown, from March 28 to April 8, essential works will see the relocation of the Midland line to a new alignment and platform at the Bayswater Station.

When train services resume, the trains travelling away from the Perth CBD on the Midland and Airport lines will be available from platform four on the newly completed northern side of Bayswater Station, while services to Perth will continue from platform one.

After the shutdown, platform two, which had been in use for trains travelling away from Perth on the Midland and Airport lines will not be operational and will remain closed until the Morley-Ellenbrook line opens.

It's the last time there will be an extended shut of the Midland and Airport lines to facilitate essential works on the Bayswater station and Morley-Ellenbrook line projects.

The shutdown will impact the Prospector and MerredinLink train with services terminating at Midland Station. No replacement services will be operating between East Perth Terminal and Midland Station.

The Indian Pacific will terminate at Kewdale Freight Terminal with a coach service to East Perth operating for Indian Pacific passengers.

Train replacement bus services will be operating during the shutdown with Transperth providing information in coming weeks to inform passengers of alternative options available.

When the project is completed, the new Bayswater station will be the connection point to the Midland, Airport and Morley-Ellenbrook lines, and provide more travel options to Perth Airport, the Swan Valley, Perth, and beyond. Transport Minister Rita Saffioti said she ac-

Transport Minister Rita Saffioti said she acknowledged the shutdown will be inconvenient, but was necessary to progress the final steps in connecting the new Bayswater Station to the Midland, Airport and Morley-Ellenbrook lines.

"This is the last time we will need to undertake an extended shutdown on the Midland and Airport lines to facilitate essential works on the Metronet Bayswater station and Morley-Ellenbrook line Bayswater station and Morley-Ellenbrook line. "The completion of the rail realignment represents the final stage of construction on the new Bayswater station – a project that has completely transformed the Bayswater town centre, and delivered the biggest train station outside of the CBD.

"We carefully considered the timing of this closure to ensure it had the least amount of impact possible, which is why we have targeted the Easter school holidays.

"When the project is completed, Bayswater Station will become a key public transport hub, giving passengers an easy way to access the Airport, Swan Valley, and the Perth CBD."

Nominate an emergency services superstar

WESTERN Australians are being encouraged to nominate emergency services volunteers and staff who have done something extraordinary in the past 12 months for the 2024 WA Fire and Emergency Services (WAFES) Awards.

Emergency Services Minister Stephen Dawson said there were 15 awards up for grabs across three categories – individual, team, and youth – covering Marine Rescue, State Emergency Service, fire and rescue, career firefighters and DFES corporate staff, and operational personnel.

Nominations close on Monday, March 25. Finalists will be announced on Thursday, May 30, with the winners named at the WAFES Awards gala dinner on Saturday, September 7.

Those people who nominate a finalist will also receive an invitation to the WAFES Awards gala dinner, and may be eligible to attend the WAFES Conference.

Bridge works delayed for the third time

ANDREW WILLIAMS

DELAYED for the third time in five months, the construction on the Scott Street bridge in Helena Valley is now set to be completed in "early-March", Main Roads said.

A transport authority spokesperson said the newest delays, which have seen the works extended by a couple of weeks, were again due to harvest and vehicle movement bans imposed by the Shire of Mundaring.

"The restrictions are out of Main Roads' control, and this has meant that work has been unable to be undertaken on site during key periods of construction," the spokesperson said.

February saw Perth experience seven days over 40 degrees, breaking the previous February 2016 record of four days.

Due to the ongoing heat and the associated bushfire risk, between January 15 and February 26, the Shire of Mundaring imposed nine harvest and vehicle movement bans.

"The new completion date is early-March, as outlined on the variable message boards. This timeline factors in predicted bans that we are anticipating over the coming week," the Main Roads spokesperson said.

The bridge refurbishment began last March and was originally set to be completed by last October. However, as previously reported in Scott Street bridge construction delays (Echo News, October 27, 2023) material shortages, inclement weather and additional project scope extended the works until January.

The most recent delays over the last two months have been due to the vehicle movement restrictions and bushfire risks.

Shire of Mundaring chief executive officer Jason Whiteaker said the shire understands the frustrations of the community.

"We empathise with the inconvenience experienced by our residents and businesses and acknowledge the frustration surrounding the delays in the contractor meeting the initially estimated timeframe for completion," he said.

Road safety for horses survey launched

THE Western Australia Horse Council (WAHC) has launched what it hopes will be a landmark survey on road safety for horses.

The comprehensive survey will be open until the end of March and is aimed at improving road safety for horses and their riders.

The survey is hosted on Google forms and invites members of the equestrian community and the general public to share their experiences and suggestions regarding the coexistence of horses and vehicular traffic on Western Australia's roads.

Road safety for horses is a critical issue that affects not just horse riders, but also drivers and pedestrians.

With an increasing number of incidents involving horses on roads, the WAHC is taking a proactive approach to understand the challenges and develop effective strategies for safer shared road use.

The survey is designed to gather detailed information about incidents involving horses on the road, opportunities for collaboration with local government authorities and organisations, perceived challenges by horse riders and road users, and effective measures to enhance safety for horses, their riders and drivers equestrian enthusiasts, and road users to participate in this important survey.

The WAHC encourages all community members,

Community feedback is invaluable and will play a key role in shaping the future of road safety for horses in Western Australia.

To participate, please visit the google form here https://forms.gle/oQQiYeYGApBTRT337 and for any further questions email horsecouncilwa@gmail.com

Containers for Change launches new residential collection service

RESIDENTS can now access Containers for Change Collect – an on-demand service that will increase accessibility to the widely popular container deposit scheme.

Containers for Change has proven hugely successful since it was launched in October 2020, with more than three billion containers diverted from landfill since then

As part of the newly launched collect service, people can book a collection through the Containers for Change WA app or their website and then select a service provider in their local area.

Collect will make Containers for Change particularly accessible to restaurants, cafes, bars, businesses, and workplaces, where it's estimated up to 400 million containers go unreturned every year in WA.

Environment Minister Reece Whitby said he encouraged people to utilise the many ways to return their 10¢ containers that are available.

"Whether it's via the collection service, by visiting a refund point, or by donating to a local school or charity," Mr Whitby said.

WA Return Recycle Renew chief executive officer Tim Cusack said Collect was established in response to a demand from our customers to provide new avenues to return that address any barriers for access and convenience

Hazelmere workers demand fairer go

GERA KAZAKOV

FIFTY union workers at Ingham's in Hazelmere are demanding a pay increase to put them in line with their colleagues at other Ingham's sites and to keep up with the cost of living.

Australian Manufacturing Workers Union (AMWU) state secretary Steve McCartney said the union has been bargaining with the company since November 2023.

"The company made a wage offer of 4.1 per cent, and 4 per cent in the second year and third, which is too low," he said.

"The company put their proposal to a vote and two thirds of the workers voted no. As a result, we will continue to negotiate with the company in good faith."

In September last year, union members from the AMWU and United Workers Union went on a five-day strike at Ingham's in Osborne Park before a deal was reached between Inghams and the union members.

Ingham's is one of Australia's largest chicken suppliers, with KFC, Woolworths, and McDonald's some of their customers.

Hunter's on for central Wheatbelt spot

GERA KAZAKOV

THE Nationals party has announced Lachlan Hunter as their candidate for the central Wheatbelt electorate in the upcoming 2025 state election.

Announced on February 24, Mr Hunter will replace central Wheatbelt MLA Mia Davies – once the opposition leader – as the seat's candidate after she stood down from the role at the start of 2023 and signalled her intent to leave politics.

Hailing from Bruce Rock, Mr Hunter said he has worked for both state and federal ministers in government and opposition, alongside spending time at Australia Post and within the grain and live export industry.

"Growing up in the Wheatbelt has given me everything I could hope for, and I have a fire in my belly to stand up for our communities to make sure they continue to be great places to live and work," Mr Hunter said.

"However, there is still much work to be done and many fights to be had and I look forward to the challenge."

Previously, Mr Hunter was the former WA Young Nationals president.

Ms Davies said in her remaining twelve months until the next election she will continue to represent her electorate and manage her shadow ministerial portfolios. "My legacy or accomplishments will be for others to judge," she

"When I sit back after the next election, I'll be proud that I've given my all for nearly 17 years to represent the electorate without fear or favour, standing up for the things I believe in and giving a voice to those that often feel remote or forgotten by government or the parliament."

Ms Davies said a highlight of her career has been working with the inspirational men and women throughout the region and the many amazing people she has met on along the way.

"What comes after politics will be decided when this job is done,"

Central Wheatbelt candidate Lachlan Hunter with MLA Mia Davies.

she said.

The Nationals also announced that current opposition leader member for Moore Shane Love MLA will contest the newly created Midwest seat, while current Roe MLA Peter Rundle will be recontesting his seat in the state's south-east.

Tourism red tape slashed

A NEWLY established Tourism Investment committee of Cabinet has a huge potential for the hills, according to Kalamunda MLA Matthew Hughes.

Led by the state's tourism minister Rita Saffioti, the new committee's focus includes setting investment priorities and streamlining decision-making processes across the govern-

"There are a number of government agencies and portfolios that have key decision-making roles when it comes to delivering tourism projects and investment, and this new committee will allow us to drive better coordination and overcome known barriers," Ms Saffioti said.

To support the new committee, we will be establishing a dedicated team within the Department of Jobs, Tourism, and Science and Innovation – whose only responsibility will be to work with industry to identify new projects, develop investment pathways, and action the priorities of the new committee.

Kalamunda MLA Matthew Hughes called the committee a great step forward after he has been lobbying some time for higher levels of coordination amongst tourism policy.

The potential for tourism development in the Perth Hills is huge," he said.

"The committee will make sure that government agencies collaborate to achieve government priorities.

"The identification of an executive team in the Department of Jobs, Tourism and Science and Innovation gives businesses a single contact point."

Ms Saffioti said the dedicated team will also include seconded subject matter experts from various regulatory and delivery agencies on an as-needed basis.

"By providing a more attractive and streamlined environment, with faster approvals, we can open up development opportunities, secure more investment in WA tourism, and grow our economy in the years ahead," she said.

FOR the second time in the history of the event, the Rottnest channel swim was cancelled due to dangerous weather

Almost 2600 participants entered the water at Cottesloe beach on Saturday morning, February 24, with the intention of swimming the 19.7km to Rottnest.

At 10am weather conditions had deteriorated beyond the Rottnest Channel Swim Association (RCSA) safety threshold guidelines and following the advice of Bureau of Meteorology and Marine Rescue Fremantle the decision was made to abandon the race. It is the first time ever the event has been abandoned during the race.

Initially, those participants who had yet to reach the 14km point were directed to exit the water onto support boats, with the small remaining group of swimmers past the cutoff point allowed to continue.

However, this small group of swimmers had their race cut short soon after

Among this group of athletes was eighteen-year-old Bassendean resident Jordan

Mr Harkins estimated that the only ten swimmers who were part of the small group that continued were surprised when they got called off as well because they were so close to the end.

As reported last week in Bassendean resident sets sights on Rotto swim (Echo News, February 23) Mr Harkins' qualifying time placed him in the first wave of swimmers who began their swim at 5.45am

He said he was able to settle into a rhythm by the 5km mark where he bounced between fifth and seventh place out of the 2600 participants. But the weather soon changed drastically.

"It got really windy, and the swell got to two meters at points," he said.

But the weather wasn't the only thing the swimmers had to watch out for.

"I got done a fair bit by the stingers (jellyfish). Probably stung 20-25 times during the 16km, but they were more of an inconvenience than an issue," Mr Harkins said.

'The whole way the only driving factor is being able to run up that beach in front of everyone. So, when they called it off it felt like I had swum for about four hours

"Some people cared a bit more strongly about not finishing because of the prize money up for grabs. But it's not the end of the world, I got everything I wanted out of the race," he said.

"Getting onto the boat, I had to get lifted on, I just had nothing left. I was pretty much hypothermic with how cold the wa-

Swan snaps, sends and solves its way to a hat-trick of awards

THE City of Swan is leading the way for Snap Send Solve in WA, winning a hat-trick of titles at this year's 'solver of the year' awards.

This month's awards recognised the Australian and New Zealand organisations driving positive change with Snap Send Solve, a free app that gives residents a quick and easy way to report issues.

Snap Send Solve is used by hundreds of local governments across Australia and New Zealand.

If residents spot something that needs fixing in their neighbourhood – such as graffiti, potholes or fallen branches – they can report it through the app.

The city won three of the four WA categories at the awards, showing the popularity and effectiveness of Snap Send Solve in Swan.

The efforts of staff and residents earned the city the WA community engagement award, presented to the council with the highest ratio of users and the highest speed-to-solve rating. More than three per cent of Swan residents used the app in 2023.

Residents delivered the city another win in the WA snapper's choice category, presented to the council which received the most votes from its us-

The city also won the WA customer experience award for having the highest rate of updated reports (98.9 per cent) and the best overall communication in the state

City of Swan Mayor Tanya Richardson said the awards were recognition for the many community members who use the app to play an active role in keeping their community safe and clean.

Snap Send Solve is an incredibly efficient tool that helps our community report problems as soon as they see them," Mayor Richardson said.

'If people come across graffiti or a maintenance issue with a footpath, they can simply snap a photo and send it straight through to us using the app. 'Our staff are always on the lookout for maintenance and safety issues, but the app makes it easy for the whole community to get involved and work

Snap Send Solve is a community-driven problem-solving platform that helps everyone keep the community safe and clean.

Residents are encouraged to download the app so can they report issues easily and directly to the city. Visit swan.wa.gov.au/snapsendsolve.

Animal cruelty charge for Bullsbrook woman

A 71-year-old Bullsbrook woman has been charged with animal cruelty after allegedly leaving a black German Shepherd tethered under a homemade tin shelter on a property in Hines Hill.

An RSPCA WA inspector attended the Wheatbelt property in October 2023 after being contacted by a WA police officer and a local ranger, where she found the dog inside a fenced off area, chained under a tin structure.

The fenced off area was predominantly in full sun – it was 38 degrees. The police officer and ranger had been providing the dog with food and water for a few days prior to the inspector's attendance.

The only water available to the dog prior to that was warm and green, with algae and dead insects floating in it.

A few dog biscuits were scattered on the ground inside the enclosure but there was otherwise no food available prior to the intervention of the ranger and police officer. When first found, the dog's tether had tangled to just one metre in length.

The inspector noted a slight build-up of faeces in the enclosure. The dog was seized and transported to RSPCA WA Animal Care Centre in Malaga where a vet noted she had an extremely dirty coat and alopecia patches around her neck, ear infections, limited food in her stomach, bacterial gut infections, and was mildly dehydrated.

The accused has been charged under sections 19(1), 19(3)(b)(ii), 19(3)(d) and 19(3)(e) of the Animal Welfare Act 2002. RSPCA WA will allege she was cruel to an animal in that she restrained the dog in a way in which it was likely to cause harm, did not provide sufficient food and water, and did not provide adequate shelter from the elements.

She is due in Merredin Magistrates Court on March 6.

Reforms to crack down on repeat stealing

REPEAT offenders charged with low level stealing offences will now face jail time, with the state government set to expand the range of sentencing options available to the courts.

The reform follows increased penalties for assaults on retail workers announced last week.

As the law currently stands, where a person is charged with stealing an item valued at $1,000 or less, and dealt with in the Magistrates Court, a 'fine only' penalty of $6,000 applies.

The other sentencing options available to the court are a suspended fine, conditional release order, or community-based order. A term of imprisonment cannot be imposed, regardless of the circumstances of the offence or the person, including previous offences.

The reforms remove the 'fine only' penalty limit where a person is convicted of a stealing offence, or an attempted stealing offence, and has two or more prior convictions for a stealing offence in the past 12 months.

These repeat offenders will instead be subject to the higher maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and $24,000 when dealt with summarily, providing more effective deterrence and opening up the full range of possible sentencing options to the court, including a potential term of imprisonment.

Premier Roger Cook said his government was standing up for small business owners, many of whom are families, as well as their hard-working staff who've quite rightly had enough.

"Serial shoplifters shouldn't be allowed to snub their nose at the law and that is why my government is taking action.

"This new crackdown specifically targets repeat offenders who simply refuse to respect the community and the courts.

a clear message to those criminals who think they are above the law."

Attorney General John Quigley said the 'fine only' penalty for low level stealing offences was well known in the community and did not provide a sufficient deterrent for would-be offenders.

Kalamunda players make Western Force Academy

ANDREW WILLIAMS

TWO brothers from the Kalamunda Districts Rugby Club have been named in the 2024 Western Force Fortescue

Dane Sawers, 19, and Max Sawers, 21, have played with the Kalamunda Bulls for more a decade and according to club president Barry Jordan the pair have always stood out

Mr Jordan said the club couldn't be prouder of the brothers and their return to the academy reflects the club's high stand-

"It's a huge honour for us, it's also great as it recognises the work we've been doing. But a lot of it comes down to Max

The Fortescue Academy offers promising young players the weekly opportunities to train with some of the state's best rugby players and be a springboard for their athletic careers.

Head coach of the men's academy - and former All Black Jeremy Thrush said the academy is a pathway system to increase the skills of the athletes to where they can graduate up into the Super Rugby competition and the Western Force.

Last year the brothers were both selected in the 2023 Academy team, but Max was tapped on the shoulder about transforming from his role as a loose forward into the prop position in the front row due to his toughness and mindset.

This transition has seen him transform his body type and strength over the last year to meet the demands of the position. "It's been unreal to see him (Max) take some really good steps in the last twelve months," Mr Thrush said.

The former All Black continued to add both brothers are great to coach and eager to get better.

"He's a very coachable kid, the same as Max. They ask questions and challenge you in the right way and then take on board what they've been taught and implement it into their game," he said.

Mr Thrush also said Dane Sawers' work ethic was a key reason he co-captained the Western Forces team during the four round U19s Men's Super Rugby Competition last Oc-

"He has a great attitude towards training and the game, real physical mindset. Really high work rate for loose forward,

Guilty plea over electric shock of apprentice

AN electrical line worker has been fined $10,500 for safety failures that left an apprentice unconscious and burnt from an electric shock in the Wheatbelt.

At Narrogin Magistrates Court on January 23, Darren Scott Hardy pleaded guilty to breaching WA's electricity network safety laws following prosecution by Building and Energy.

The court heard Mr Hardy was employed by Western Power in August 2022 when he and a second-year apprentice line worker travelled to Gorge Rock – around 250km east of Perth – to repair a fire-damaged network power pole.

Prior to starting work, Mr Hardy completed safety paperwork including certification that protective earths were fitted to the power poles. The earths protect line workers against contact with live electricity if the installation becomes energised

According to information presented in court, the apprentice climbed a ladder and reported he had received an electric shock while removing wires from the damaged pole. He adjusted the ladder and returned to work, but sustained another electric shock that left him unconscious with burns on his hands and knees.

Mr Hardy drove the apprentice to Kondinin Hospital. The apprentice was airlifted to Royal Perth Hospital and later required several skin grafts.

A Western Power investigation found Mr Hardy did not follow mandatory work practices outlined in the network operator's safety rules. Despite Mr Hardy's certification, earths had not been fitted to the power poles. The apprentice was not wearing adequate protective clothing and a required test was not carried out to ensure the site was de-en-

Mr Hardy contravened the Electricity (Network Safety) Regulations 2015 by failing to ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, that a prescribed activity carried on a network was carried out safely.

In addition to the $10,500 fine, Mr Hardy was ordered to pay $439.24 in costs.

Magistrate Erin O'Donnell acknowledged Mr Hardy's guilty plea, remorse and lack of other workplace incidents, noting he was no longer working at Western Power.

New Midland clinical trials centre welcomes first patient

MIDLAND'S only respiratory clinical trials centre is celebrating a milestone as it welcomes its first-ever patient.

The Institute for Respiratory Health, who opened its doors to the Midland community in September 2023, is dedicated to bringing cutting-edge clinical trials to residents throughout the region.

Jean Jolley, who has been living with COPD and emphysema for more than nine years, is the clinical trials centre's inaugural patient. Since joining the clinical trial Jean has seen some notable improvements in her health, including being able to perform household chores more effectively and having a better night's sleep.

"I am coughing less and do not wake up in the middle of the night with a coughing fit. It feels good to be able to sleep through the night," Mrs Jolley said.

This is the first research study Mrs Jolley has participated in. She was motivated to take part in the research as she wanted to take control of her health.

"I was also driven by my desire to help friends and family who might have the lung condition now or later on in life and thought the findings of the research might help others," she said.

The institute's expansion into Midland with new clinical trials centre late last year complements its existing facility at the Harry Perkins Institute of Medical Research in Nedlands.

The Institute is renowned for its extensive work with more than 2,400 volunteers across more than 250 studies on various lung conditions, including asthma, COPD, IPF and cystic fibrosis, over the past two decades.

Meagan Shorten, manager of clinical trials at the Institute, emphasised the importance of volunteers in their research efforts.

"Our achievements in conducting lifechanging trials are deeply rooted in the commitment of volunteers like Jean. Their participation is crucial for advancing our understanding of lung diseases and improving treatment options globally."

For those who have a lung condition you can contact the Institute for Respiratory Health directly by visiting their website – respclinicaltrials.org.au to find out what clinical trials they are currently running. You can also sign up online or call them directly on 0419 011 766.

Mrs Jolley is a regular volunteer receiving the Senior Community Citizen Volunteer of the Year in 2023 from the City of Stirling.

We're looking for people with idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF) to take part in a clinical trial for a potential new treatment. Are you:

Solution to plastic cup ban launched at Mill and Grind

IN anticipation of the ban on single-use plastic coffee cups, slated to come into effect in March, Our Kinds and Eastern Metropolitan Regional Council (EMRC) launched their global cup libraries project on Saturday, February 24 at White's Mill and Grind in Mundaring.

This collaborative endeavour marks a significant stride towards sustainability, offering an innovative approach to combat single-use waste while supporting local cafes and businesses.

Aligned with EMRC's ambitious sustainability goals, the project will engage 12 cafes across EM-RC's jurisdiction, with three cafes in each council area participating in the trial.

News from your City | March 2024

Mayor's

I hope this message finds you well as we transition into the month of March. At the Ordinary Council Meeting on 27 February 2024, the Council decided to revoke Local Planning Policy 33: Tree Retention. This change respects people's rights, making it easier for them to manage their own properties.

We will keep you updated as the process unfolds, ensuring transparency every step of the way.

For those seeking leisure activities, our Sunset Series movie nights continues to offer delightful evenings under the stars. Join us for a screening of Dreambuilders tonight (1 March) at Ollie Worrel Reserve, High Wycombe, and Buckley's Chance on 8 March at Walliston Primary School, Walliston. Please note that movies are subject to weather conditions.

If you're feeling more adventurous or looking to stay active, I encourage you to explore the various sport and recreation offerings available at local clubs in our community. It's a great way to connect with others and stay healthy while enjoying the outdoors.

On a celebratory note, this month marks the Second Chance Reuse shop's second birthday! I'm thrilled to share that the shop has made remarkable strides, diverting over 174,000 kg of waste from landfill since March 2022. Additionally, our partner, Workpower, has collected and processed over 105 bales of cardboard (>24,000 kg) and 125 bags of Polystyrene (> 560 kg), contributing to estimated cost savings exceeding $36,000 to date. This achievement is a testament to the power of community collaboration and environmental stewardship.

As always, thank you for your ongoing support and engagement in making our city a vibrant and sustainable place to call home.

Margaret Thomas JP Mayor

Community

The City of Kalamunda is conducting market research with the 2024 MARKYT Community Scorecard, to understand the community's perception and priorities on what it is like to live in the City.

The study is being managed by CATALYSE®, an independent research company and is conducted every two years. The Scorecard helps the City understand the community's priorities and assess performance against the vision and outcomes set out in Kalamunda Advancing 2031 - Strategic Community Plan.

Please let us know what you think about services, facilities and programs in your local area and how they could be improved, by completing our Community Scorecard.

Responses will remain confidential in accordance with the Privacy Act and Australian Privacy Principles. The City will receive a report with aggregated responses and a Voicebank with anonymous comments.

Community members and business representatives aged 14 years or older are invited to submit one response per person.

The scorecard generally takes 5-10 minutes to complete or may be slightly longer if you wish to expand on some of your written answers.

To have your say, complete our 2024 Community Scorecard online.

Submissions close Friday 8 March 2024.

Have Your Say

The Road Asset Management Plan outlines the quality conditions and maintenance over a five-year period for the City's road assets which include road surfaces, bus stops and parking areas.

Before we finalise our Road Management Plan, we want to know your feelings on our roads. Are the City's road assets in an acceptable condition? Are they functional and fit for purpose?

New LGBTQIA+ inclusion strategy to promote equality

THE state government has committed $900,000 to develop a strategy to drive inclusiveness for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, intersex, asexual plus (LGBTQIA+) Western Australians.

Led by the Department of Communities, funding will be provided to three not-forprofit organisations over two years to support the development and implementation of the strategy.

The three organisations are Living Proud, which provides support to LGBT-QIA+ people through peer support, information and resources, TransFolk of WA, a peer support service for transgender people and their loved ones by informing, empowering and advocating for trans and gender diverse people to survive and thrive, and GLBTI Rights in Ageing Inc (GRAI), a voluntary group focusing on promoting the voices, expertise and lived experience of older LGBTI people to the wider community.

These organisations play vital roles in supporting the LGBTQIA+ community in Additionally, an LGBTQIA+ peak body will be established and supported to implement the strategy.

Rainbow Futures WA, a consortium of WA-based LGBTQIA+ organisations and individuals has also advocated persuasively for this initiative and will be an important contributor to its development and implementation.

LGBTQIA+ people face significantly higher levels of discrimination, stigma, and social exclusion, which can contribute to deteriorating health, social and econom-

The strategy will support a coordinated approach through targeted support, strong partnerships and better integration between government agencies including the Departments of Communities, Education and Health and the Mental Health Commission.

Youth Minister Hannah Beazley said equality and freedom from discrimination are fundamental human rights that belong to all of us, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity.

"We know that young LGBTQIA+ people are far more likely to face discrimination and exclusion, which is completely unacceptable in 2024.

"The Cook Government is committed to creating equal opportunities for all West Australians, and this whole-of-government strategy will bolster our efforts to address discrimination – ensuring LGBTQIA+ people in WA are given every chance to thrive and succeed.

Community Services Minister Sabine Winton said this was an important step to ensure LGBTQIA+ people in WA benefit from a coordinated approach that will champion their interests now and into the

'The funding will allow the Department of Communities to work closely with non-government LGBTQIA+ groups to develop a framework that will reduce discrimination and promote equality.'

Seniors and Ageing Minister Don Punch said the government was committed to ensuring older Western Australians feel valued, safe and empowered to lead happy and fulfilling lives in age-friendly commu-

"Seniors make up 5.3 per cent of samesex couples in Australia, which is why it's so important all seniors feel safe to be open about who they are.

"An inclusive community benefits everyone and a culture of inclusion leads to higher performance, productivity and improved well-being for all.'

eye on crime

RAPID apprehension squad (RAS) detectives have charged a Woodbridge man and a woman with 83 offences as a result of their investigation into stealing incidents from staff, visitors and patients at hospitals. It will be alleged on Sunday, January 14 the two accused persons entered a ward at a city hospital and stole a purse containing cash and a debit card, as well as earrings and a necklace from an 82-year-old patient.

The offenders then used the victims debit card in 81 alleged separate fraudulent transactions in various stores.

It is further alleged on Saturday, February 3, the two accused persons entered a hospital in Nedlands where they entered a restricted room which is only accessible via a swipe card, and stole a staff member's bag and left.

The alleged used the victim's bank card in seven separate fraudulent transactions at various stores.

It will also be alleged the two accused persons were involved in a number of other stealing incidents from hospitals and vehicles, resulting in further fraudulent transactions being done.

During the investigation a vehicle of interest was identified and RAS detectives stopped the vehicle in East Perth and took the two accused into custody.

A search warrant was executed at the couples Woodbridge home where officers allegedly located and seized items of inter-

A 48-year-old woman from Woodbridge has been charged with burglary and commit on a place, two counts of trespass, four counts of stealing, one count of possession of stolen or unlawfully obtained property and 29 counts of gains benefit by fraud.

They appeared before the Perth Magistrates Court last week on Wednesday, February 21, with the male back at Perth Magistrates Court via video-link from Hakea, and the female via video-link from Melaleuca on March 20.

Wattle Grove serious assault

MIDLAND detectives are continuing their investigation into an alleged serious assault that occurred at a cultural festival in Wattle Grove on Saturday, October 21, 2023.

About 8.30pm, two groups of people attending the Diwali Mela festival at the Abruzzo Molise Sporting Club became involved in an altercation.

The incident occurred between the clubhouse and the playground, and during the altercation, a 22-year-old man was struck to the head with a metal object, believed to be a pole.

The man received a skull fracture and was taken by St John WA to Royal Perth

A 38-year-old man from Piara Waters has been charged with one count of 'To cause fear that someone will be injured/ disabled' however inquiries remain ongoing, and detectives believe further persons were involved in the incident.

This was a significant event, with a large crowd of bystanders who may have seen the incident.

Detectives wish to speak with anyone that was present at the time of the incident. Anyone with information regardincident should Crime Stoppers. Anyone with vision can upload it via: https://wapf.au.ev idence.com/axon/community-request/ public/wattlegroveseriousassault

Wet weather wins and losses for Midland Guildford

Jack Giancono and Ben Skinner from the male 2nd grade put together a late tenth wicket partnership of 115 runs.

JOSHUA McKENZIE

RAIN delays and losses marred February's final weekend of play for the Midland Guildford Cricket Club playing sides, while a late tenth wicket partnership by the male 2nd grade proved the difference in the match.

The senior male sides completed their two-day matches against University, while the other teams played a variety of different opponents, battling rain delays. The male 1st grade suffered a 10-wicket defeat in their match, while the male 2nd grade did not see play commence on day two of their contest.

The match did however see a remarkable 10th wicket partnership shared by Jack Giancono (77 not out off 122) and Ben Skinner (32 off 105) who together took the score in the first innings from 9/174 to 289 all out in a partnership of 115 runs.

In the male 3rd grade, the side posted a total of just 116 all out in their first innings, before dismissing their opponents for a total of just 76 and securing a 40 run first innings victory.

The male 4th grade chose to bowl first in their match and were rewarded with dismissing their opponents for a total of just 54 runs.

The side declared with a 78-run lead and began the second innings. Their opponents would manage to reach 9/111 at stumps on day two with Ethan Ozanne and Lennon Brookes finishing with figures of 4/7 off 16 overs and 2/10 off 14 overs respectively.

The female A grade faced Subiaco Floreat in their latest 50 over fixture in a match that was impacted by rain. Electing to bowl first, they limited their opponents to a total of just 97 all out.

The match resumed after a rain delay with a reduced target for the side, which was reached with only three wickets lost in a seven-wicket triumph.

The female B grade had a bye, and the female U17s and female U14s were both defeated in their

The male U14s also fell short in their grand final against Subiaco Floreat and suffered a 91-run defeat, the male U17s were defeated by 64 runs, and the male U15s were unable to resume play on day two and had their match abandoned.

IIs Grandslam hits the Maida Vale clay

GERA KAZAKOV

DRIZZLE and overcast conditions didn't stop a capacity player cohort competing at this year's Hills Grandslam French Open in Maida Vale.

Run by the Midland Lawn Tennis Club, the 'French open' was again held at the Maida Vale tennis club on Sunday, February 25, with 96 competitors filling 24 mixed-teams of four.

Kicking off at 8am, the teams competed across six divisions each named after a French region, with each player playing three timed sets in the morning and afternoon.

Lyon was won by Racquets 'R' Us – comprising of Noah Watts Bibby, Nigel Dickinson, Waree Holton and Ann Mac-Geehan, while the Haberneros (Courtney Newton, Justin Myles, Claire Newton and Ha Le Davis) were the runners

Toulouse was won by Trying Our Best (Adrian Manescu, Bill Kerr, Anne Kerr and Katja Aslop), with Jason Hall, Lee Dallow, Maureen Deal and Simone Mikolich's team The Friendly Forries walking away as runners up.

Avignon was won by the Beach Bums (Andrew Raymond, Ibrahim Aliu, Wendy Lewis, Lorraine Oliver) and Brian Lansdown, Denis Gilbert, Julie Thomas, Di Evans from the Dare Doubles were runners up.

In Amiens, Team Bayswater (Andrew Siney, Surabh Nair, Ashlinne Zoranich and Masalingo Boland) won while Team Extreme (Marc Adam, Tyrone Murray, June Vonderling and Gillian Longworth) were runners up.

Bourdeaux was won by Mark O'Don-Sukwinder Singh, Anne Miller and Elena Holt's Can Not Be Serious, with Ray's Rebels (Ray Barker, Gareth Hughes, Judy Hawrylak and Harriet Robertson) as runners up.

In Marseille, team Forrestfield (Andres Arevalo, Matthew (substitute), Leanna MacArthur and Audrey Tuckey) were victorious while the Duecebags (Oscar Ellard, Lee Benporath, Keri Benporath and Jill Kendall) were runners up.

Hills Grandslam tournament director Mandy Campbell said all the runners up received a special Hills Grandslam embroidered handtowel, while the division winners received a cash prize.

She thanked all volunteers who helped make the day run smoothly and said the French Open has often been dubbed the 'hot and dirty slam' due to the high temperatures players often must face when plaving.

Now entering its nineteenth year, the French open is the second tournament in a series of four which seek to recreate world-famous tennis tournaments across the hills and foothills suburbs

Deb Dessauvage and Phil Calpakdjian on the Maida Vale clay for the 'French Open'.
