Nightingales founder retires after nearly four decades

THIRTY-NINE years since she founded community pharmacy and newsagency Kalamunda Nightingales, Francine Middleton was ready to retire.

Mrs Middleton said she grew up in Kalgoorlie and later moved to Perth for school, where she graduated with a pharmacy degree in 1967 at Curtin University.

A year after she graduated, she married her husband Tony who studied engineering.

"His work was in the country so I went off with him.

"We spent time in the Pilbara and the Kimberley and during that time I managed a pharmacy in Port Hedland.

"Then I had two boys and Tony was posted in Northam in 1974, and we were there for six years.

"I was working in three pharmacies in Northam at that time but because of the children, I really couldn't do more than a few hours a couple of times a week."

Mrs Middleton said they moved back to Perth in 1980 with their four children, three boys and a girl.

"In 1984 I started managing a pharmacy in Rockingham.

"The opportunity came with this newsagency being for sale and I thought a pharmacy newsagency would work because often when people are sick, they need something to read.

"At the time I felt like I needed to be doing something more," she said.

In the 1980s Mrs Middleton said there weren't many pharmacies in the area.

"There were pharmacies in the main street and one near St Brigid's and I think that was about all at that stage.

"(It) felt like we could do more by putting another pharmacy there.

"As the children grew up, they all worked in the pharmacy and although none of them have become pharmacists, unfortunately, I think they all enjoyed their time there.

"A lot of their friends and young people from the Kalamunda area have worked there.

"I really enjoyed getting to know all the people and their parents and being involved.

"It's definitely been very much a community-based pharmacy."

Mrs Middleton said she experienced hardship because she was a woman who wanted to start a business in those days.

"I always felt like I was being condescended to.

"When I went to borrow the money to start the

"When I went to borrow the money to start the pharmacy, I was patted on the back and told, 'why don't you just leave it to the big boys?'.

"I thought, 'we're not going to wait around – we're going to get out there and do it'.

"I have a granddaughter who is 30 and she's got her own apartment and she's done all of that by herself.

"I think back to my time when there was no way that I would have been able to have the support that she has today without having my husband and our assets behind us."

She said she wouldn't have made it through the challenges without the support of her family.

"The kids were always very understanding of my having to work long hours and not necessarily being there for the ball games and the football games as time went on but we managed.

"Now I get to see a lot of my grandchildren playing all those sports."

She said it's important for people who wanted to start a business to believe in themselves.

"Don't let people touch you on the back and say, 'leave it to somebody else'.

"Do what you want to do and make it for your-self."

Kalamunda McDonald's DAP decision deferred

GUANHAO CHENG

AN alternate motion was passed during the May 29 Development Assessment Panel (DAP), deferring the Kalamunda's McDonald's and car wash development application decision for up to 180 days.

The alternate motion was passed after the report recommendation to accept the application lapsed for want of a mover and a seconder.

The decision gave the applicant six months to address the DAP's concerns with the City of Kalamunda.

Most panel members agreed a documented agreement on the scope of the intersection upgrades should be submitted before any decision was made on the application. "The panel was concerned about the potential for delays to any implementation of intersection upgrades, once the fast-food outlet was already in operation," the document stated.

'No further comment' is arrogant

Dear Echo News,

"I won't be comment-ing further" says the Minister for the Environment after granting 45 years more gas production by Woodside on our North West Shelf shows his blatant arrogance is only surpassed by the stupidity of that statement by the person most responsible for the protection of us all from pollution and degradation of our environment.

Those who think this provides the "necessary certainty for business" are either ignorant or dismissive of the decision's likely impact on us all and of the fact that business makes its profits because it deals with uncertainty.

If there was no uncertainty business would not exist, because entrepreneurial profits would not exist in a certain world.

The reality is that the real "certainty" you've created is that of future generations' scorn, which may be offset (at least for you and your political colleagues) by more jobs at Woodside for the boys/failed politicians!

Woodside decision a carbon bomb

Dear Echo News,

What do you do when you toss and turn all night worried about the effect of approving a massive carbon bomb on your grandfiitiir

The decision by the Environment Minister Watts was essentially a suicide note for our precious Ningaloo, Scott and Montgomery

IPCC scientists warn that we are on our way to two degrees of global heating by 2040 and 2.5 degrees by 2060 incompatible with the survival of coral reefs, and yet Scarborough gas extension has been approved to 2070.

Woodside has promised net zero by 2050 on its extraction of gas using dodgy carbon credits and carbon capture and storage but that doesn't account for the 50 years of exports which will still be causing global heating in a 100 years.

Woodside's emissions will add as much as all Australia's current coal power stations and make it impossible to reduce emissions to 80 per cent by 2035. The emissions are equivalent to ten years of emissions from the whole of Australia.

Bike lane visibility concerns

Dear Echo News,

Five years ago I contacted the City of Swan regarding bike lanes not being visible to drivers in cars.

The lanes are brown and barely show a bike logo to indicate it is a bike lane.

I have recontacted the City of Swan and I have been waiting for a while to get a response.

Years ago there was community consultation from the City of Swan but nothing came of it regarding bike safety and lanes.

There is one outside the town hall that is barely visible none in most of the other streets

About a month ago I was involved in an accident with a situation of coming off a footpath onto the road and the e-scooter was on the road.

If there had been a bike path I would not have fallen off, I would have been in front or behind the e-scooter.

I did receive a huge bruise and lots of pain in my leg as I also had to be picked up off the road.

Recently I was near the railway workshops in front of the hospital riding on a bike lane and there was a van parked on the bike lane.

I stopped and advised the driver he said there was nowhere else to park.

I then went off the bike path onto the road and I had an abusive female driver screaming at me to get off the road.

There has been many a time where drivers have beeped and got close behind me and screamed obscenities and to get off the road.

I have been riding for 50 years or so and on most days I indicate and if I have to be on the footpath I am careful of pedestrians and advise that I am behind them.

I am trying to start a petition to get the lanes in the inner city wellmarked to indicate that there are visible bike lanes.

Swan filmmaker questions Trump's film tariff

CINDY CARTOJANO

SWAN View filmmaker Steven Mihaljevich says he's got questions about who, what and how a 100 per cent tariff on foreign films would work but says there may be an upside to the tax.

Earlier this month US President Donald Trump announced on his social media platform Truth Social that he authorised both the Department of Commerce and the US Trade Representative to start work on a 100 per cent tariff on films coming into the US produced in foreign countries.

"The movie industry in America is dying a very fast death," Mr Trump said in his May 5 post.

"We want movies made in America, again."

Mr Mihaljevich partly agreed with Mr Trump

"Trump is right about one thing and that is that the film industry is dying a really fast death," Mr Mihaljevich said.

He said filmmakers sought production overseas due to a variety of factors

'Streaming services, screenwriters strikes, actor strikes, production costs, a lack of funding to compete with a growing number of independent filmmakers, AI and Covid are all factors that have influenced the decline of the movie industry.'

He said these factors contributed to the globalisation of the film industry.

'Whilst America is certainly feeling the pinch of the downward spiral of the movie industry, other countries have it worse and rely on America for funding and other critical areas to make a production.

"And Hollywood leans on overseas production studios for financial and viability reasons."

However, Mr Mihaljevich said the film tariff may inspire or motivate the Australian government to do something about the country's national quotas.

"We have been relying on America for far too long.

'Unfortunately, Australia does not consume its own content as much as it should.

"For myself personally and my own films, I have always felt that Australia was the last place to put their hand in.

Mr Mihaljevich said his 2020 film The Xrossing didn't get a proper Australian release and was distributed by an American company.

"This is a film that is 100 per cent Australian.

"Its cultural significance, its characters, story and social themes explored are all inherently Australian, and still the film was picked up in overseas festivals before it came to Australia.

"Sometimes it feels like the perception is, if US applaud it, it must be something.

Five years on, he said The Xrossing was planned to get an Australian release

A similar situation happened to Mr Mihaljevich's second feature the Violett.

"The film has been released internationally and had its fair share of American film critics applauding the film for different reasons, and only now is Australia releasing the film.'

A Department of Local Gov-ernment, Sport and Cultural Industries (DLGSC) spokesperson said both the federal and state governments were waiting for further clarification about the potential impact of tariffs.

The DLGSC spokesperson said the upcoming $233.5 million Perth Film Studios (PFS) in Malaga would put WA in a position to attract large scale national and international films, TV and gaming projects.

Construction of the facility is approximately 60 per cent complete and is expected to be finished in late 2025 with capac-

Creative Industries Minister Simone McGurk was asked if she was concerned about the foreign film tariff, how she thought it might impact the PFS and if any preparations were being made.

Ms McGurk said the state government worked with partners around the world, not just the US.

"We are committed to making films here in WA and supporting the pathways for economic diversification and jobs here in WA,"

According to the state government's April 17 statement, the PFS would be operated by Perthbased company Home Fire.

Home Fire declined to com-

Mr Mihaljevich said he wasn't sure how the PFS would impact the film industry.

'It will definitely help provide resources and ways to aid, bringing directors' complex visions to life and different ways in doing

"But will it provide more job opportunities for independent dicompetitive environment for Perth directors who are already doing it tough?"

He said the important thing was to continue the drive to create a film culture where filmmakers felt supported and encouraged

'This is going to take a lot more than a film studio unfortunately but it is a step in the right direction.

Mundaring roadwork clarification

IN Traffic delays due to burst pipe (Echo News, May 30) we stated "Meanwhile, the shire announced an upgrade of the Helena Valley Road and Scott Street intersection started on Monday, May 26."

The Echo did not intend to imply the upgrade at the intersection of Helena Valley Road and Scott Street was a Shire of Mundaring-led project.

The roadwork at the intersection is part of Water Corporation's Hazelmere and Helena Valley water pipeline upgrade project.

"The shire's communication on May 22 via its official Facebook page was intended solely to inform the community about traffic management arrangements to support these Water Corporation works," Shire of Mundaring chief executive officer Jason Whiteaker said.

"No intersection upgrades have been planned, announced or undertaken by the Shire of Mundaring at this location at this time.'

Water Corp confirms Chidlow fixes

GUANHAO CHENG

WATER Corporation says it has identified several Chidlow homes receiving water pressure below minimum service standards and will fund tanks and booster pumps to fix the issue.

In response to questions from Echo News, a Water Corporation spokesperson said monitoring equipment had been installed at strategic locations to track pressure fluctuations throughout the day and night.

"Through these investigations, some properties were found to be receiving pressure to the water meter below minimum service standards," they

Hong Kong opens door to WA agribusiness

CINDY CARTOJANO

REPRESENTATIVES from The House of Honey (THOH), Hippie Kombucha and Sin Gin Distillery were showcased at one of the leading trade exhibitions in Asia, HOFEX Hong Kong at the end of May THOH sales and marketing manager Leigh Taylor said the event was well organised with buyers from across the region in attendance who looked for potential products, services and partners.

"We really enjoyed being able to sample our honeys, tell people about WA honeys and get feed-back directly from buyers," Mrs Taylor said.

She said New Zealand Manuka honey performed well overseas so there was a real opportunity in WA to build the brand awareness of antimicrobial Jarrah honey.

"We have many beautiful honeys to share with the export market, but we do have some work to do.'

She said events like HOFEX were important because it allowed businesses to see firsthand what is happening in their market.

'You can see how people shop, what pack configurations they are shopping for, what the competitors are doing, and where products are positioned, priced and marketed.

"It has been great to continue to build networks with other WA producers, which conversely opened up conversations to collaborate.

For Sin Gin Distillery's key account and export manager Jeneya Savage, the event was a real buzz from start to finish.

"It truly felt like a celebration of the best the industry has to offer," Mrs Savage said.

Similar to Mrs Taylor, Mrs Savage said the event provided the space to build connections.

"It's not just about direct sales.

"It's about creating relationships that can lead to future opportunities and long-term suc-

She said the team at Sin Gin had worked tirelessly to become an export-ready business

"After successfully establishing a strong presence in the Australian market, we felt confident that the time was right to take the next step and explore global opportunities.

Agriculture and Food Minister Jackie Jarvis said the state government had worked hard to develop the Hong Kong market and to connect WA agribusinesses with potential buyers.

"Hong Kong imports over 90 per cent of its food, making it a major import market in the Asia Pacific region and a place with great potential for WA export growth," she said.

"Face-to-face trade engagement at events like HOFEX is critical to help convert buyer opportunities into strong supply relationships that build our agrifood and beverage industry, diversify our economy and create

BAITING TO PROTECT NATIVE WILDLIFE

Under the Parks and Wildlife Service's Western Shield program, baiting to control foxes and feral cats occurs on more than three million hectares of conservation lands in Western Australia.

The baits used are toxic to introduced animals but not to native animals which have an evolved tolerance to the active compound (1080). All baited areas are signposted.

Baiting occurs on a regular and ongoing basis to protect endangered native animals including the numbat, western ground parrot and western swamp tortoise.

Premier's trade trip ignores agriculture says Opposition

SHADOW Agriculture and Food Minister and Central Wheatbelt MLA Lachlan Hunter has criticised Premier Roger Cook's recent overseas trade mission for failing to include meetings with agricultural stakeholders, calling it a missed opportunity to support one of Western Australia's most vital export industries.

Premier Cook returned from his first official mission to Indonesia and Singapore last week, touting carbon capture and storage as the next boom for Western Australia.

Mr Hunter said while the Premier made time for meetings on green energy and decarbonisation, the agriculture sector, a pillar of WA's regional economy and a major contributor to trade with both countries, was completely sidelined.

"As Shadow Minister for Agriculture and Food, I find it staggering that while the Premier is promoting WA as a global trading partner, he failed to include agriculture in any part of his itinerary," Mr Hunter said.

"Agriculture is a $10 billion industry, and our farmers are leading exporters of wheat, beef, lamb, and live animals to Indonesia and Singapore. These are relationships built on decades of trust, quality and reliability. To ignore the sector entirely sends the wrong message to both our trading partners and our producers at home.'

Mr Hunter said the mission was a missed chance to reinforce WA's clean, green agricultural brand and to advocate for the future of key exports currently under threat from domestic and international

"At a time when farmers are already grappling with market uncertainty, biosecurity risks, and a live export ban looming at the federal level, the Premier should be standing shoulder to shoulder with them - not leaving them off the invite list.

'If the Premier is serious about economic diversification, regional development, and food security, then agriculture must be front and centre - not an afterthought.

Perth tree canopy data released

THE latest 2024 tree canopy data for the Perth and Peel regions shows that total tree canopy cover is at 22 per cent.

Data in 2020 showed urban canopy was at 21 per cent.

The updated data provides a clearer, more detailed picture of the extent and type of urban vegetation across all suburbs and local government areas in the Perth and Peel regions.

Urban canopy plays a vital role in making suburbs cooler and more resilient to the increasing health impacts of heatwaves, while also delivering environmental, social and economic benefits, including cleaner air, habitat for wildlife and more attractive neighbourhoods.

The 2024 dataset also shows variability in canopy cover suburb-by-suburb. This data can help guide planting efforts and help support the continued growth of existing trees.

As part of its ongoing commitment to enhancing tree canopy, the Cook Government will later this year consider a draft Urban Greening Strategy for Perth and Peel being prepared by the Western Australian Planning Commission.

In addition, new initiatives including urban greening grant funding, a native tree planting rebate program called Treebate and a $7.2 million tree recovery package to address losses caused by the polyphagous shot-hole borer will be rolled out.

Planning and Lands Minister John Carey said urban canopy was critical to building cooler, greener and healthier suburbs across Perth and Peel.

"Having clear, up-to-date and accessible data helps local governments and communities plan for greener streetscapes and identify areas where planting efforts are most needed.

"Through developing an Urban Greening Strategy and rebates and grant programs, we are backing efforts to grow our urban forest for healthier communities and future generations.

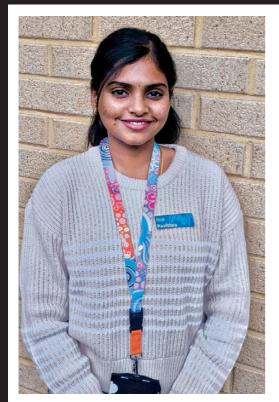

Environment Minister Matthew Swinbourn said protecting and expanding the tree canopy was vital in the face of a changing climate and increasing "The Cook Government's investment in tree recovery, planting initiatives and future greening strategies demonstrates our commitment to resilient, thriving urban environments.

"Urban forests are essential natural assets for our cities - improving biodiversity, protecting wildlife habitats and supporting the wellbeing of our com-

"We are committed to working with local governments and the community to increase canopy cover and ensure Perth and Peel remain liveable, vibrant and resilient places for generations to come.'

Pavithra's experience supports City of Kalamunda's Early Years project

City of Kalamunda intern UWA Master of Business Analytics student Pavithra Balashanmugam.

UWA Master of Business Analytics student Pavithra Balashanmugam, combined her skills and volunteer experience to support better Early Years outcomes with the City of Kalamunda, through a recent McCusker Centre for Citizenship internship.

Before moving to Perth for her postgraduate studies, Ms Balashanmugam was working as a data analyst in India, while also volunteering for a government program designed to support children who had fallen behind in numeracy, literacy and social skills due to school closures during the Covid-19 lockdown. Settling in at UWA, she started looking at opportunities to broaden her experience.

When I learned about the McCusker Centre internships, it felt like a fortunate opportunity – a chance to combine my technical expertise in data analytics with meaningful work that could positively impact the community, she said

Recognising her experience and interests in her application, the centre's team selected her for the Early Years Research intern role with the City of Kalamunda, where she developed a social audit to help create a directory for all available community services for children aged zero to five years.

"This audit is part of a broader project aimed at improving suburbs within the city by addressing the key domains identified in the Australian Early Development Census (AEDC)," Ms Balashanmugam said

"The project seeks to ensure that early childhood development progresses appropriately across five domains: physical health and wellbeing, social competence, emotional maturity, language and cognitive skills (school-based), and communication skills and general knowledge.

"The project also aims to raise parents' awareness of the critical connection between play and childhood development. The directory will serve as a practical resource, helping parents access services that support their child's development in these areas, ultimately promoting overall growth appropriate to the child's age and enhancing school readiness."

City of Kalamunda youth and community development officer Samantha Cranswick said that having Ms Balashanmugam's support for the project had been an incredible help.

"Pavithra brought a new perspective to the program and delivered the city's first ever social audit. Her work will be the basis of a brand-new parents' hub for local families acting as a one stop shop website platform for parents to find the information they need," Ms Cranswick said.

"Pavithra was such a great fit with the team, she was so adaptable jumping in and supporting at key youth services programs including the Youth Week program and the city's first ever Town Booster project, which was featured on ABC news.

The experience gave Ms Balashanmugam a deeper understanding of the local community and social and systemic challenges.

THE Department of Fire and Emergency Ser-outdoor furniture can become dangerous in destruction vices (DFES) is urging people to tidy up around their properties before severe winter weather hits, with a few hours of home preparation meaning safer neighbourhoods in Western Australia.

State Emergency Service (SES) volunteers responded to 1056 calls for assistance between June and October last year, with the majority for roof and structural damage, fallen trees and water ingress.

Crews spent an average of 3.5 hours at properties, often for damage that could have been prevented. DFES deputy commissioner Craig Waters said too many people were complacent, leaving their homes and families vulnerable and increasing the burden on SES volunteers, who are the state's frontline response to severe storms.

'Now is the perfect time to undertake a few simple measures around the home that could save thousands of dollars in repairs when a storm kicks off,"

"Loose roof sheeting, unstable fences and even

'Cleaning gutters and downpipes of built-up leaf litter, securing trampolines, furniture and bins that can become dangerous airborne missiles in strong winds, and removing overhanging tree branches are simple measures you can take to protect your home and stay safe.'

Deputy commissioner Waters also encouraged people to stay informed by downloading the Emergency WA app and setting watch zones for their

"Setting watch zones is the quickest and most effective way to receive alerts and warnings about severe weather, with the ability to choose up to 10 locations including home, school and work," he said.

Looking after your individual needs @ Adelphi Living

Adelphi Living has brand new homes opened in Ballajura for NDIS Supported Independent Living and Specialised Disability Accommodation.

Adelphi Living CEO, Howard Emery, advised that these beautiful new homes can each accommodate three (3) Participants, in single oversized bedrooms with private fully accessible bathrooms.

At Adelphi Living we take a "Person Centred Approach" to the supports and services with Participants having choice and control in their daily lives.

For Ballajura, we have chosen fully accessible and high physical support housing designs for these new homes.

Adelphi Living assesses the needs of each Participant and selects the staff that are required for each Participants individual needs.

We have Registered & Enrolled Nurses and all our Support Workers have achieved a minimum of Certificate III in Individual Support, in either Aged, Disability, Community or Mental Health.

Mr Emery further explained that

Adelphi Living is caring for several people who were previously living in aged care facilities, but now because they are under 65 years of age, they are eligible for NDIS funding and accommodation, which offers a more relaxed lifestyle and superior staffing levels.

The childcare centre's built form was shown to be 10m tall at its highest point from its base in the development's planning illustrations.

Darlington residents are frustrated at DAP outcome

GUANHAO CHENG

THE Darlington Residents and Ratepayers Association says residents have been ignored after the development assessment panel approved a large-scale childcare centre in a residential area despite strong local opposition.

The proposed centre, approved by the Metropolitan Outer Development Assessment Panel (DAP), will cater for 80 children on Darlington Road.

The Shire of Mundaring had previously voted unanimously to reject the development.

Darlington Residents and Ratepayers Association (DRRA) chair Louise Stelfox said the DAP process bypassed local democracy and disregarded community concerns.

"Local democracy is being blocked," she said.

"Everything the community raised was totally disregarded by the DAP."

She said planning changes introduced by the state government meant developments worth over $2 million were now assessed directly by the DAP, with no requirement for council approval.

"I mean this thing – council opposed it unanimously, but it didn't seem to matter to the DAP panel," she said

Ms Stelfox said nearby residents would be severely impacted by the development, citing noise, traffic and loss of amenity.

"There's one lady who's more severely impacted than anyone else," she said.

"This great big building is going to overshadow her northern boundary.

"She's not going to have the same amenity she was afforded when she bought that property."

The owner of the property neighbouring the development, who did not wish to be named, said the proposed childcare centre would cast her garden in shadow, worsen traffic and noise at her home.

"I work from home and now I've got a great big commercial structure next to me so there will be air conditioner noises and because of the height of the property, the wall won't stop the noise," she said.

"My plants will be cast in shadow from the building, which will be about three sea containers high, and if I move and replant them, I hope they don't die.

"I've tried to contact the Department of Planning, Lands and Heritage and they basically told me I had no rights of recourse."

The resident contacted the Department of Planning, Lands and Heritage (DPLH) on April 28 to include her deputation at the DAP hearing for the development and was told panel members would consider it prior to the meeting and then declare at the meeting that they gave due consideration to the submission.

Nine deputees from Darlington attended and opposed the approval of the development during the DAP meeting.

Following the approval of the development, the resident asked the DPLH for advice for the process to have the decision reviewed.

She was advised there were no third-party appeal rights in relation to planning decisions in Western Australia and courts did not remake the decision if reviewed "Judicial reviews are more commonly made by third parties," the DPLH said.

Kalamunda meeting place for trekkers

CINDY CARTOJANO

KALAMUNDA's Bibbulmun Track Northern Terminus was a meeting point for walkers on WA Day to join Ricky England on his Big Jarrah Walk (BJW) towards a rally at parliament house.

Mr England said he arrived in Kalamunda with a small group and met up with 25 new hikers, and an additional eight who joined from Victoria Park.

The 30km from the northern terminus to parliament was part of Mr England's 250km walk from Dwellingup to Perth which he did across 10 days. Mr England said he chose the Kalamunda meeting point because it was the terminus of the track and symbolised a doorstep to the surrounding bushlands.

He said he wanted to do this walk to raise funds for the WA Forest Alliance in an effort to end forest mining by Alcoa and South32.

"The walk was a way to connect with the country that is under threat and to be in it, and to bear witness," he said.

Mr England said he was amazed at the people he encountered throughout the walk and at the parliament house rally.

"When I looked at the crowd, it was just such a diversity of people from all over Perth."

He said the oldest trekker who joined him was 73 years old and the youngest was 18.

"There were all ages represented.
"This is not a group of activists of "This is not a group of activists or hippies – these are real Western Australians from all walks of life who really care about this issue."

During the walk Mr England said he was saddened by the sight along the Darling Range crossing. "You look out across the Darling Range, and you can see the strip mining on one side of the range.

"On the other side is this beautiful section of pristing buch."

On the Tuesday after the rally Mr England said he looked at the footage from his journey and was overwhelmed with emotion.

"When I started out, initially I hoped I don't walk on my own.

"I would have been excited if we got 50 or 100 people people.

"And by the time we got to parliament we were in the thousands."

Mr England invited Premier Roger Cook, Environment Minister Matthew Swinbourn and EPA

chair Darren Walsh to join him on the walk.

Mr Walsh said the EPA regularly engaged with community stakeholders to ensure it was fully informed about environmental impact assessments.

"Only last week the EPA extended the length of the public consultation period for the two Alcoa assessments it currently has before it," Mr Walsh said.

The Premier and the Environment Minister have been contacted for comment.

Community cooks to help those in need

CINDY CARTOJANO

DURING the long weekend volunteers from the community and churches spent time in their homes to cook about 300 kilos of food in support of Midland Meals (MM).

Feed it Forward volunteer Teena Spark said the cook for a cause program started last year to provide meals for the homeless.

Mrs Spark and her husband started dropping off leftover food to MM from the Feed it Forward pantry three years ago and they became acquainted with Pastor Loren Pratt who cooked at MM.

The program began after Mrs Spark asked Pastor Pratt if her church could cook meals for MM.

"Last year the church wanted to do more and organised volunteers to cook meals," Mrs Spark said

"MM provided the food and the church the vol-

She said some volunteers went all out and cooked more than 10 dishes with the ingredients they collected.

The volunteers took the ingredients home and returned the next day to deliver the cooked dish.

"We ended up with 150 trays, and around 300 kilos worth of cooked food.'

Mrs Spark said this was almost double last year's outcome when 85 trays and about 185 kilos of food was cooked. She said this year's program was different because members of the community were invited to participate. "Half our volunteers this year were from the community, and they were just awesome.'

Despite the limited advertisement about the event, Mrs Spark said she wasn't surprised by the big turnout of volunteers.

"The community really feels for those doing it tough," she said.

"With these horrendous rents and the mortgages and the cost of living just going up and up.

Mrs Spark said more action needed to be taken to address the cost of living crisis.

"I feel the government are not putting the needs of its people first, leaving charitable organisations to pick up the pieces, stepping in where government has failed.

She said the crisis was intergenerational, with old and young people affected.

"I've had one pensioner come through and cry because they got pumpkin.

"They got a slice of pumpkin, and they said, oh my gosh, you don't know how long it's been since I've had pumpkin'.

After the program, Mrs Spark said volunteers approached her and said they enjoyed the work and wanted to continue helping.

"We are now in the beginning stages of forming volunteer groups to operate from the MM

"I've got about 18 people on the list from the community and two people that are willing to be team leaders to organise it.

"These lovely volunteers will go down, they'll get food from the storeroom, get meats, go home, cook it, and then bring it back and it'll go straight into the freezers of the MM."

Mrs Spark said a name for the group was yet to be decided but she was welcome to suggestions.

Mundaring's heritage trail rated the best

MUNDARING's Railway Reserve Heritage (RRH) Trail was rated number one in the people's choice top 10 trails in WA.

Locals and visitors were welcome to cast their votes throughout autumn and Trails WA confirmed the results at the end of the season.

Trails WA started the people's choice award last year as a way to celebrate the trails that inspired adventure connection and awe.

Trails WA Chair, Suzanne Hillier said the campaign highlighted the growing passion for trails across the "Trails are more than just paths – they connect us to nature, history, and each other," she said.

"We're thrilled to see so many Western Australians share their love for the trails that mean the most to them."

Collie, Albany, Dyandra Woodland, Kimberley and Pemberton were some of the other sites that made it to the

The RRH Trail website states the trail retraced 59km of the old Eastern Railway.

"Passing through reserves you will discover the individual history, story and character of the settlements that sprung up alongside the line," it stat-

"The most western point to start your journey is from Bellevue where you can follow the old Eastern Railway lines either in a north or south direction of Great Eastern Highway.

"The two lines rejoin at Mount Helena forming a unique 41km loop entirely on railway formations before extending 18km east to Wooroloo Reserve."

The trail is suitable for walkers and cyclers, with dogs on a lead welcome and horses can be ridden along the trail, except in national parks.

Sprinkler switch-off starts

THE beginning of June welcomes the start of Water Corporation's winter sprinkler switchoff which aims to save billions of litres of water.

The program which started in 2010 saved about five billion litres of water annually and helped support the water security of 2.5 million people, according to Water Corp.

With severe rainfall deficiencies recorded across the southern parts of WA since 2023, Water Water Corp is calling on people to be water Corp said it was more important than ever to re- conscious by switching off their sprinklers. duce winter water use.

'This has driven a 12 per cent increase in household water use across Perth, emphasising the need to conserve water during winter when lawns go dormant and gardens require less moisture," a Water Corp spokesperson said

Water Corporation demand delivery manager Damien Postma said the winter sprinkler switchoff was integral to preparing for increased water use during summer.

"It's no secret WA is heavily reliant on desalination to meet our water needs, however, this alone is not a silver bullet," Mr Postma said.

"It's important we don't get complacent when it comes to being waterwise because using water efficiently is a fundamental to collective water security – especially given recent climate trends.

Average rainfall across southern WA had fallen 15 to 20 per cent since 1970, leading to an 80 per cent reduction in streamflow into Perth dams.

According to Water Corp the Mundaring Dam recorded almost 24 gigalitres of stored water last year.

This year the dam is at about 21 gigalitres. Last year Victoria Dam recorded 4.23 gigalitre of water and about 5 gigalitres this year, based on Water Corp's data. Penalties would apply to those caught breaching the switch-off, although hand watering was permitted and some exemptions applied. In addition to scheme and bore water users, the switch-off also applied to many licensed groundwater users. In areas of WA not subject to the ban, normal watering rosters and the daytime sprinkler ban still applied.

Compost buddies – nema-todally fabulous

A fabulous, food-fertilizing foundation!

Nematodes are a type of invertebrate roundworm. They are the most abundant animals on earth and are in every ecosystem; from our oceans to lava fields, Antarctica and yes sometimes even inside us and our animals. Soil nematodes are usually microscopic, and most are amongst the 'good guys' that are crucial for the making of healthy soils. There are probably billions of them thriving in your compost bin. One of the amazing roles they perform in the soil is converting organic matter into mineral forms that can be taken up and used by plants. Life would be at a loss without those types of nematodes helping to circulate nutrients in the environment and there are many undescribed species still to be found!

They are what they eat

Scientists like to classify living things and group them together based on similarities. Nematodes are so diverse that we often put them into groups based on what they eat. For soil nematodes we tend to identify them based on these feeding groups: Bacterivores eat bacteria, Fungivores eat Fungi, Predators eat other nematodes and animals, Plant Parasites feed from plants, Plant Associates eat algae, lichen, mosses and roots of plants, and Omnivores have a variety of food sources. Identifying numbers of nematodes by feeding groups in a soil sample is a good way to estimate a soils biological diversity and to indicate the rate of nutrient cycling occurring. Healthy soil has a higher abundance and diversity of free-living nematodes and low numbers of plant parasites.

Some nematodes are pests

Those of us who have cats or dogs (or children!) will be familiar with needing to provide regular worming treatments to stop parasitic nematodes in the gastrointestinal system. Other parasitic nematodes may live in different organs of a variety of animal species or humans and when travelling it is important to avoid them. Parasitic nematodes that attack plants can have huge impacts for growers and we must protect our state to prevent the introduction of exotic pest species. Even turf can be affected. When a patch of 'hallowed ground' was moved from the Melbourne Cricket Ground to the Brisbane Cricket Ground for the 2020 AFL grand final it carried a plant parasitic nematode in the turf and accidently introduced 'Southern Sting' nematodes to Queensland!

How can you help?

Good garden hygiene practices are important. When buying or moving plants or seeds, check up on quarantine requirements – you may need to remove soil from the roots or have seeds tested. If you are growing vegetables in the garden, purchasing nematode-resistant varieties and avoid planting the same plant family in the same location in consecutive years. And finally, backyard composting is a wonderful way to put our 'good' nematodes to work so that soil can be brought into good health too. They may be microscopic, but nematodes are mighty. They make nutrient cycling possible. Thanks nematodes!

ENTRIES have opened for the four-day Lance East Exotics Tarmac West rally that will be held in Perth and surrounds from September 18 to 21.

The Tarmac West stages will be held in Whiteman Park, Ellenbrook, Parkerville, Kalamunda, Toodyay, Maryville Downs, Bullsbrook, Malaga and in the heart of Perth's CBD.

Rally drivers will race the clock along about 250 kilometres of closed roads that will include long flowing stages where drivers can really open up their machines and find their rhythm, and tight technical stages that require deft driving.

Lance East Exotics associate director Chris Reindler said he is proud to continue supporting Tarmac Events, one of the most accessible and community-driven forms of motorsport in Australia.

"In addition to the seasoned pros, these events give everyday enthusiasts the chance to experience motorsport at ground level, often providing their first real up-close interaction with the sport," Mr Reindler said. "They become a focal point of excitement

"They become a focal point of excitement and preparation throughout the year, turning spectators into active participants.

"Enthusiasts dedicate countless hours building, preparing, and dreaming about their cars – creating goals to strive toward, experiences to share, and achievements to celebrate alongside like-minded individuals."

"We're thrilled to be part of something that brings so much energy, connection, and anticipation to our community every year."

Lance East Exotics Tarmac West is open to rally cars and has a category for standard road cars for those who like spirited driving.

Introduced in 2024, Tarmac West's Time Speed Distance (TSD) category is for standard cars with drivers and co-drivers requiring a helmet and an Australian Auto-Sport Alliance (AASA) general speed license.

TSD competitors are required to complete each stage as close as possible to the time allowed and penalised for an early finish more so than finishing late.

Tarmac Events WA director Ross Tapper said there is strong support for rally competitions in Western Australia.

"We've just seen international competitors travel to WA for a gravel rally event Forest Rally, and we are seeing good interest for Tarmac West's rally on sealed roads," Mr Tapper said.

"We are thrilled to continue our partnership with Lance East Exotics, their support and those of all our sponsors are crucial for us to be able to run events."

Going from strength to strength, Tarmac West is delighted to announce a two-year partnership extension with Lance East Exotics, a luxury car dealer in Perth.

SPECIALIST officers from the WA Police Force arson squad are seeking the public's assistance for information as they continue to investigate a suspicious fire that occurred in Midvale on Thursday, May 15.

The fire started about 12.45am in bushland along the western bicycle path of Roe Highway.

The fire spread quickly due to strong easterly winds, spreading through further bushland to a traffic management company located on Beaconsfield Avenue.

The fire caused an estimated $1 million damage to machinery and equipment at this local business. Arson Squad officers have released some dash-cam vision of where the fire started in an effort to seek further information from the public.

Officers are still asking for any dash-cam or mobile phone vision taken in the vicinity of the fire between 12.30am and 1.30am on Thursday, May 15.

Vision can be uploaded directly to investigators via the link: https://wapf.au.evidence.com/ axon/community-request/public/midvalefire

If you have any information relating to this fire, please contact Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or online via www.crimestopperswa.com.au.

Rewards of up to $25,000 are available for information that leads to the identification and conviction of an arsonist.

Police want anyone with information regarding the above incidents to call Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or you can make a report online at www.crimestopperswa.com.au

Mayor's MESSAGE

It has been an exciting month of colour, creativity and connection here in the City of Kalamunda!

One of my highlights was watching the Forrestfield town centre come alive during our 4-Hour Makeover last month. With support from David Engwicht and Forrestfield Centro, City staff transformed a quiet car park into a vibrant gathering space—complete with native flower murals, playful art, and cosy community nooks. This project is a perfect example of how a dash of creativity and a big dose of community spirit can bring a space to life.

We're also making strong progress on some of our key infrastructure projects. Work is well underway on the Norm Sadler Pavilion upgrade—a major step in realising the Maida Vale Reserve Master Plan. And in Forrestfield, the new Foothills Men's Shed is taking shape, with an official opening planned for later this month.

If you're a young artist—or know someone who is—don't miss the chance to enter this year's Young Artist Awards. The 2025 theme, "Myths," invites our creative young minds to explore stories and culture in exciting new ways.

As we settle into the Noongar season of Makaru, the cold and wet weather reminds us to stay safe. Please remember, if you're planning a burn, follow all safety guidelines and be fire-aware during the permitted period.

Lastly, we're proposing differential rates for the 2025/26 financial year. I encourage you to visit the City's website to learn more and to have your say.

Thank you for being such a passionate, engaged community

Mayor Margaret Thomas JP

KPAC BOX OFFICE HOURS

SEASONAL HOURS - TRIAL

Earlier this week, Kalamunda Performing Arts Centre (KPAC) introduced a seasonal trial of reduced Box Office opening hours.

This adjustment responds to changing community needs and aligns with trends seen at other performing arts venues, where demand for face-to-face Box Office services typically decreases during this time of year.

Trial Box Office hours for walk-in and phone sales:

Tuesday to Friday | 10am-2pm Plus 30 minutes prior to all performances

Patrons can continue to book tickets online 24/7 via the KPAC website – offering a flexible and convenient option at any time. Visit kalamundapac.com.au

We appreciate your support as we trial these changes and work to better meet the needs of our community.

RATES: OBJECTS & REASONS NOTICE OF INTENTION TO LEVY DIFFERENTIAL RATES

The City of Kalamunda is giving notice of its intention to levy differential rates for the 2025/2026 financial year.

This is in accordance with Sections 6.33 & 6.36 of the Local Government Act 1995 and the Council's intention to continue levying differential rates for the 2025/2026 Financial Year.

A statement of the Objects and Reasons for the proposed rates and minimum payments is available for inspection on the City of Kalamunda website, and at the Administration Centre (Monday - Friday, 8:30am -5:00pm). Comments close Friday 20 June 2025.

Pavithra's experience supports City of Kalamunda's Early Years project

"While helping organise Youth Week events, I learned that some children attended solely for food and drinks. Witnessing realities like this highlighted for me the profound connection between socio-economic factors, education, and future employment opportunities, underscoring the importance of community support in addressing these challenges," she said.

"I would absolutely recommend a McCusker Centre internship to other students. You can gain experience in a professional setting while also finding satisfaction in knowing that your work can positively impact the community.

"Regardless of the field you are placed in, the internship offers broad exposure to real-world projects and challenges. As an international student, I found it particularly beneficial for gaining insights into the Australian work culture, which has been an important part of my personal and professional growth."

'Councillor Cook served the community with dedication across two terms, from 2013 to 2017 and again from 2021 to 2025

'She served as deputy shire president from 2023 until her resignation earlier today.

"We warmly congratulate (Ms Cook) on her election and look forward to the benefits her advocacy will bring including $3.9 million upgrades to local bushfire brigades and $1.2m for battery backups at telecommunications towers.

"We also look forward to a continued relationship with Trish as she represents the broader region of Bullwinkel."

Shire of Mundaring President Paige McNeil said Ms Cook was a passionate and hardworking representative who always put her community first.

'On behalf of council, I thank her for her years of service and wish her every success in federal parliament," she said.

Darlington residents are frustrated at DAP outcome

"A judicial review could be made by way of an application to the Supreme Court of Western Australia and is primarily concerned with how the original decision was made, as to whether it was consistent with administrative law principles of valid decision-making.

The range of remedies in a judicial review is more limited, where the court does not remake the decision but is merely asked to consider whether the original decision was lawful.

Darlington Primary School principal Andrew Newhouse said Amherst Avenue was a busy cul-de-sac.

"The afternoon is worse than the morning, with the whole street full of banked up vehicles waiting for their pick up," he said.

Ms Stelfox raised concerns about bushfire safety, claiming adjacent homes had been built to high bushfire attack level (BAL) standards and the childcare facility needed to meet those

The association is now calling on the shire to urgently review its local planning scheme and for the state government to support changes proposed by the WA Local Government Association (WALGA), including raising the DAP threshold from $2 million to $5m and increasing local representation on pan-

"We'd like them to review the local planning scheme in partnership with the ratepayer groups," Ms Stelfox said.

"What's going to be interesting is whether the government accepts WAL-GA's advocacy.

"I sorely hope they do."

Swan Valley Cricket wins community

AT the annual national community cricket awarding ceremony the Swan Valley Cricket Club (SVCC) was recognised for its leadership and support in building community-based initiatives.

WA Cricket said the ceremony recognised the work club volunteers did both on and off the SVCC president Alby Page said it was incredible to win the community partnership award considering they were up against so many great clubs and initia-

"Like many sporting teams in the area, we have a wonderful committee of volunteers that work tirelessly all year round," Mr Page said.

"To see their hard work rewarded is one of my favourite moments as president.

WA Cricket community cricket general manager Jo Davies said community cricket wouldn't be the way it was without the volunteers who did work behind the scenes.

"We can't thank our volunteers enough for all they do in community cricket," she said.

Mr Page recognised there was stigma around mental health, especially amongst men.

He said the club's think mental health round which was held at the end of last year, the blue tree project and the work that followed from these campaigns contributed to the club being recognised for its community effort.

'Whilst the round was successful, I believe it was the work afterwards by Sandra and the others that resulted in us winning the award

'Being able to offer a safe place for our players and members or supporters to reach out and ask for help is really important.

He said he was pleased to know there were other clubs working hard in this space.

West Coast Fever defender Sunday Aryang. Picture: West Coast Fever

Fever win in front of record crowd

DURING the WA Day long weekend West Coast Fever played against the Queensland Firebirds in front of a season record 11,427 fans at RAC Arena and won their sixth win in a row by 17

Sunday Aryang intercepted and rebounded against the Firebirds and helped to move the ball to the opposite side of the court.

The match took off with a neck and neck start with both teams going goal-for-goal in the opening minutes.

Fever were able to break away and create a lead thanks to the mid-court magic of Alice Teague-Neeld with 11 feeds and Jordan Cransberg with 10.

Despite pressure from Firebird Isabelle Shearer, Fowler-Nembhard scored 20 goals for the first

The second quarter was all about defence, with Kadie-Ann Dehaney leaping for three rebounds under the post

Sunday Aryang managed a strong intercept, whilst a missed super shot from Firebird Mary Cholhok was the perfect opportunity for Aryang to steal a rebound and move the ball into the waiting hands of Fowler-Nembhard.

Shanice Beckford scored the first super shot for the match with a minute in the quarter to solidify Fever's 11-goal lead at half time.

Fran Williams' impact on the court was immense in the third quarter.

Her pressure under goals combined with her ability to break free for ball earning her three deflections and an intercept.

Zoe Cransberg came on in the centre bib and with quick thinking took an intercept off the hands of Firebird Imogen Allisson.

Olivia Wilkinson kept the Green Army happy, taking two quick goals as she entered the game as well as two super shots later in the term.

Wilkinson continued to be an important presence with two goals including a super shot, 12 goal assists and 12 feeds for the final quarter.

Dehanev took three deflections whilst Fever built a lead as high as 20 goals during the quarter.

The final minutes were electric thanks to an incredibly loud Green Army who felt the fever as the squad soared to another win.

Fever now faces two consecutive games on the road, taking on the NSW Swifts in Round 9 and the Melbourne Mavericks in Round 10.

Hills Raiders player Tyson Kelly.

Perth Hills & Cockburn basketball showdown

THE Hills Raiders men and women's teams will be facing the Cockburn Cougars this Saturday during the final instalment of the showdown series in a back-to-back championship basketball double-header.

Hills Raiders men and women's teams will be playing against the Cockburn team with Raiders women tip off at 6pm, followed by the men's championship team at 8pm.

Hills Raiders officer Shaun Bunting said while the Raiders and Cockburn Cougars don't share a formal league rivalry, there's a fire between the clubs built on repeated clashes across age groups, rep teams, and championship matchups.

"Because Hills Raiders don't yet have an NBL1 team, many visiting clubs have come to Mundaring expecting an easy result," he said.

"But this season is different – we've got our strongest championship squads yet, and when you factor in the support of our entire basketball community from WABL juniors, domestic clubs, local businesses and the shire, Mundaring Arena has become one of the hardest places to play in WA.

Our players know their players – there are real one-on-one matchups that are hotly contested, with mutual respect and a hunger to prove something every time they step on court.'

Mr Bunting said the men and women's teams were both feeling excited for the match-up and believe in their ability to win.

"For the players, it's more than just a final home game – it's a chance to make a statement about who we are and what we're building out here," he said.

"Our teams are proud of the fight they've shown throughout the series and they're hungry to finish strong in front of a home crowd that's been unbelievable all season."

The first game of the showdown resulted in a loss for both the men and women's teams against the Joondalup Wolves.

However, the Raiders men's team were able to secure a comeback win on the following weekend against the Perth Wildcats Academy players ahead of the final game.

Throughout the regular season, both the men and women have been tested under pressure – late-game scrambles, defensive battles, momentum swings – and they've come out tougher each time," Mr

'That resilience is something they'll be taking into Saturday night. "They know every bucket, every possession, every loose ball will matter (and) they've learned not just how to stay in games, but how to turn the tide.'

Ellenbrook social housing boost

Swan Hills MLA Michelle Maynard says the housing designs were practical for providing homes to people in need.

ELLENBROOK is set to receive 14 two-bedroom homes for social housing with construction commencing in July and the rooms available to applicants on the state-wide housing wait list by late 2026.

The homes will be constructed in maisonette style, a French term that means little house, which describes a type of dwelling that is larger than an apartment but smaller than a free-standing house.

Each building will practically have two levels which will house their own two-bedroom home. with their own separate entrances.

The new development comes as part of the state government's $5.1 billion investment in housing and homelessness measures.

Swan Hills MLA Michelle Maynard said the arrival of the homes were a welcome change for the Ellenbrook community.

This is an exciting development for Ellenbrook, bringing much-needed social housing to our community," she said.

"The innovative maisonette design provides practical and efficient homes for those in need, ensuring we continue to support vulnerable residents while responding to the challenges in the housing sector.

According to REIWA's June 2025 median price data, the price to buy a house in Ellenbrook was $685,000 and $705 per week to rent with a median of $550 per week for a two-bedroom house.

REIWA also indicated that Ellenbrook was a fast-growing suburb, and outpaced Perth's median growth rate in the one, five, and 10-year observation

Perth's 62.6 per cent growth rate of median house price lags behind Ellenbrook's growth rate of 95.2 per cent over a five-year window, which illustrated the growing difficulty of affordable housing.

Housing and Works Minister John Carey said the government was doing all it could to boost the available housing stock, including the exploration of different housing designs and methods of constructing "Our government is doing everything to deliver more social housing across the state, including adopting innovative design and alternative construction methods," he said.

'We're not stopping our ambitious program to deliver more than 5000 new social homes through our record $5.1b investment."

This new social housing development comes on the back of two Autism WA homes which began construction in January 2025 as part of the same $5.1b investment in social housing.

The purpose-designed dwellings can each accommodate three adults with autism and a 24/7 carer and will meet the improved liveability design guidelines, as reported in Two Autism WA homes being built in Ellenbrook (Echo News, May 30)

Swan View among highest growth suburbs in May

SWAN View has been named by REIWA as being one of the top growing suburbs in May, recording growth of 1.4 per cent or more.

According to REIWA's most up to date data, the median price for buying a house in Swan View was $670,000 while rent costs $645 per Jane Brook was also named as one of the fastest selling suburbs for houses in May, selling properties in about seven days alongside Joondalup, Alkimos and Golden Bay.

The fastest median leasing time of nine days were occupied by Brabham and Doubleview, with Thornlie trailing at 10 days, Alkimos at 11, and Hamilton Hill, Wembley, Balcatta, Balga, West Leederville and Westminster at 12 days.

Perth's median house sale price increased to $780,000 while Perth's median unit sale price rose to $535,000 in May.

Perth's median house and unit rent prices were unchanged.

REIWA president Suzanne Brown said the conditions underpinning price growth remained.

"Population growth, while declining slightly, is still strong, which fuels demand for housing," Ms Brown

"As expected, we saw new listings increase throughout May, following the holiday-related slump at the end

"Sales activity also increased to-wards the end of the month, which has seen active listings settle slightly below the April level.

Perth's median dwelling rent increased 0.7 per cent to $675 per week in May which is 3.8 per cent higher than the same time last year.

The median weekly rent for houses and units remained stable at $680 and $650 respectively but both were higher than a year ago.

We continue to see periods of stability in the rental market, interspersed with relatively small movements in median prices," Ms Brown

"The median unit rent has been unchanged since December 2024. And the median weekly house rent price has been $680 for four of the past five months.

This reflects the changed conditions in the rental market, including an increase in supply and increase in the vacancy rate.

Lost and Found!

While in Japan recently, Colleen and I travelled northward to Hakodate on the island of Hokkaido to see the cherry blossoms - and we were not disappointed. They were spectacular! We then travelled further north to Sapporo.

When we arrived at Sapporo early evening via train, I couldn't believe how big the train station was. There were multiple tracks and subway lines beneath it, and multi-storey shopping centres. After taking some time trying to find the right exit, I decided to leave Colleen in the station while I located the hotel.

After a while I found the hotel. Then, I went back to get Colleen. I easily found the train station, but I couldn't find Colleen.

I retraced all my steps, and even though I have good spatial awareness, I just couldn't find her. Finally, after a long 45 minutes, with crowds of people about, I found her - sitting where I had left her. Why couldn't I find her? She was on a different level to the ones that I had been looking for her on.

As I think of that incident, I'm grateful God never loses us. He knows all about us and where we are all the time; which is expressed so beautifully in Psalm 139. And when we are lost spiritually, our God seeks us. God's Son Jesus said in Luke 19:10 "I have come to seek and save the lost". I'm glad He found me, and saved me when I trusted in Him.
